
Loy Yang B Turbine Retrofit Project

In February, ENGIE Loy Yang B held a public information session for the community on the proposed Loy Yang B Turbine Retrofit Project.

The session outlined the proposed project, which would see the replacement of existing turbines with higher efficiency design turbines.

Since this time, ENGIE has been working with the EPA and has progressed a Works Approval application with the regulator for the planned steam turbine upgrade project.

As part of our company's continuing commitment to regularly inform the community, a public information session will be held to provide an update on the project.
