

ENGIE'S HOST COMMUNITY ENERGY REBATE

If you live near one of ENGIE's future renewable energy assets in Australia, you may be eligible for an electricity rebate from ENGIE as part of a program to provide direct power bill relief for renewable energy host communities.

Up to $1000 in annual electricity rebates will be available through ENGIE's retail business and applied to local household and small business electricity bills for the operating life of the neighbouring asset.

ENGIE is committed to accelerating the transition to net zero and supporting the communities where our projects are located. This is one way to ensure our projects can have a positive impact on the local community.

The rebate will come into effect from the date the asset starts generating electricity.

FAQ's

WHAT ARE THE ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA?

Your house or small business needs to fall within a prescribed proximity to ENGIE's a new renewable energy asset - this includes Willogoleche 2 Wind Farm.

You must be on (or move to) an eligible ENGIE electricity plan and remain on that plan to receive the rebate.

HOW MUCH REBATE WILL I RECEIVE?

The project's total community benefit fund is $65,000 and ENGIE has allocated $15,000 per year for Energy Rebates.

If the community determines energy rebates should be a higher priority, the amount allocated towards this from the total pool may increase to provide greater benefits to more households. Depending on the number of applicants - the amount of the rebate and total number of offers available in each location may be capped.

WHEN WILL THE REBATE COME INTO EFFECT?

If you are eligible for the rebate, the rebate will be payable from the date of project commission, in other words, when the asset starts generating electricity, not when construction of the asset starts.

HOW CAN I APPLY FOR THE REBATE?

When the project is in construction - ENGIE will open an EOI to local households for people to express their interest in the program. ENGIE will host a local information session to explain the details and sign up those interested.

HOW WILL I RECEIVE THE REBATE?

The rebate will be paid in monthly, bi-monthly or quarterly instalments on electricity bills depending on State and meter type, apply to a selected ENGIE plan and appear as a credit.
